WHY DO BUDGETS FAIL?

Budgeting. It is this one thing that not just every business but also every little household should do. We all must have read about budgeting and the importance of budgeting in personal finance is paramount. Yet, it is very rare to find an individual who is committed and consistent in preparing and following budgets for his/her household expenses. In this article, we will talk about budgeting and try to find reasons as to why budgets and budgeting exercises fail?

What is budgeting?

Let us start with understanding the concept of budgeting. Simply put, 'budgeting' is the process of creating a plan as to how to spend your money during a particular time period, including setting limits on different types or heads of expenses. This spending plan is called a budget. Creating this spending plan allows you to determine in advance whether you will have enough money to do things you need to do or would like to do. Budgeting is simply balancing your expenses with your income.

Typically, the budgeting exercise for a household would be done on a monthly frequency. It would include all your net income cashflows and also your net outflows and expenses. So, you will have a clear idea about where your money is coming from and going into.

Purpose of budgeting:

The purpose of budgeting is basically ensuring:

- You are never over-spending in any area
- You never run out of money
- You save some money to invest
- You have control over your spending habits / behaviour

- You plan your expenses so as to avoid discretionary expenses

The 50/20/30 Rule:

It is important here to talk of this very popular thumb rule for budgeting called as the 50/20/30 budget rule. The idea here is to divide your after-tax, net income into different baskets, that is limits. The first basket of 50% would be your 'needs'. The second basket of 20% will be allocated towards your savings. The remaining 30% will be for your wants or discretionary spending. The proportions of this thumb rule are very generic in nature and you are advised to fix a proportion that is more suitable for you.

Note that the 'needs' here are the necessary expenses that you cannot ignore or postpone. These will include basic expenses like house rent, utility payments, school fee, maid salaries and grocery bills. The second component, savings, gets an upper hand over the third, discretionary / voluntary spendings.

Why we fail:

Below are some factors leading to failed budgets:

1. Wrong Plans /Inadequate Limits: Quite often, in the initial zeal of preparing a budget, you may likely go overboard. Inadequate limits set on a certain type of expense may feel very restrictive and thus may lead to a breach. A wrong plan may also mean that you entirely underestimated the expense or over-estimated the income. There may also be a possibility of any expense head being missed out. To be successful, every plan has to be properly prepared in light of your historical spending habits so that there is a sense of continuity.

2. Lack of self-control: Too many people spend money as they earn, to buy things they don't want, to impress people that they don't like. This tendency is true for many of us. Lack of control on what you need to buy or on what things you need to spend are the biggest reasons for breach of budgets. Having self-control will take you a long way in securing your finances and meeting your budgets.

3. Lack of discipline: Lack of discipline in preparing and following a budget is often the next culprit behind failure of our budgets. We often get tired very easily in the process and lose track of our progress. For the success of the entire budgeting exercise, one has to be very disciplined to record and track his/her progress. Over time, one is also likely to lose interest in this exercise believing it to be boring and uninspiring.

4. Lack of appreciation: Most of us may begin the budgeting exercise without an adequate level of conviction or commitment to follow the same. This may be due to the person not really understanding and appreciating the full benefits of budgeting. Keeping yourself half committed is never going to work.

5. Lack of team work: Budgeting for a household is a team effort. Your spouse, children and even parents would be expected to agree to and follow the budget. Even your children would be given fixed pocket money or budget limit for managing their affairs. If even one family member loses grip, the budget falls.

6. You missed out emergencies: It is very likely that one misses out for accommodating any emergencies since these emergencies do not occur very often. We are not talking about major financial emergencies here, since we believe you would be having an emergency fund to look after the big ones. What we are talking here is about the small, unexpected emergencies like, loss of your mobile phone, a car repair expense, your child falling sick for few days, unexpected medical checkups for parents, and so on. It would be advisable to keep a small portion of your budget, say 5% only for unexpected small emergencies.

7. Give it time: Rome was not built in a day and neither can you hope to build a perfect budgeting culture in your home from day one. Budgeting may require a behavioural and even a lifestyle change. It may take some time for people to adjust their spending habits as per budgets. Be patient and be considerate enough when you start the journey. Perhaps the first few months will be more of learning for everyone but one should not lose hope and keep committed to this over the long term.

FINANCIAL STRESS: THE STEP BY STEP WAY OUT

For many Indians, financial worries are a part of life. Being a developing economy with a very large population living without adequate financial resources, financial anxiety is like a part of life. The middle-class families of India have high aspirations and dreams but often feel frustrated and find themselves stuck in the vicious cycle of living hand to mouth.

Financial Stress?

Financial Stress is at the next level of the situation described above. It is an abnormal situation arising out of something unexpected or a situation which was foreseen but has now aggravated. Events like loss of job, medical emergency, loss from business, losing your investments, theft of property, etc., may lead to financial troubles. Further, situations like funding for child's education, marriage, etc., without an adequate and stable source of income can also land you in financial stress. These are some of the instances/situations and there can be many more reasons for leading one into financial stress/troubles.

The Way Out:

Obviously, the one thing someone with financial troubles would desire is to get out of it as early as possible. However, being in stress, it is not easy. Perhaps a helping hand, a guide, a logical way out would be of great help to those who do not know where to start. Your financial awareness and discipline will be tested here. We present our own version of the step-by-step guide to help you find your way out of your financial troubles. We hope that readers can not only use it during financial stress but also during good times to avoid getting into any trouble.

1. Get in the right frame of mind: The first thing one has to do is to get into the right mental frame for tackling the problem. This is not as easy as a lot of negative thoughts may be coming into your mind. However, remember that there may be people who have faced much more and have come out of it and nothing will stop you from coming out of this temporary situation. Only you have to believe that it is possible and would require your focus. You have to be positive, committed and focussed on resolving your troubles.

2. Identify stress points and root causes: You have to be honest about everything first. A lot of financial trouble happens when we ignore and reject early warning signs and do not take remedial actions before time. The more honest and realistic you are, the better are the chances of success. With this honesty, one would expect you to first list all your stress points and the root causes behind them. What were the decisions or habits or events that led to such problems? What were the mistakes you did in past? What are the key and immediate concerns/challenges before you? These are the questions you need to answer.

3. Reviewing your debt and renegotiating: Significant amount of outstanding debt is often the biggest cause of financial stress. A debt of any kind, especially debt related to depreciating assets is a strict no for any good financial plan. If your debt is your key trouble area, you need to first list down every type of debt you owe along with all relevant details like EMI, outstanding loan amount, period remaining, rate of interest, collateral or security given against same and so on. A priority list of the debt to be repaid back must be prepared on a combination of factors like cost, outstanding amount, period remaining and possible financial resources at disposal.

Another thing with debt is that you can renegotiate it with the lenders. Very often, financial institutions will consider your case and give you some comfort on this front. Don't be scared if you have defaulted on few EMIs and collection agents are knocking at your doors. Please be confident enough and approach the lenders, explain to them your situation, show honesty and commitment to repay back and renegotiate the terms. The lenders too would be inclined to restructure your loans.

4. List out financial priorities and solutions: The next step is to think and list out the solutions that will resolve your troubles. Your possible solutions would come from your own situation. The solutions will also give an idea of the decisions you need to take to get back in control of your financial life. The list should also have priorities attached to every important decision or action plan. This blueprint will be in line with the financial priorities you have.

Generally, getting out of debt should be the first priority and one should even consider extreme solutions to resolve the same. For eg., if you have an expensive car loan, can you not sell your car and repay the loan? If you have a loss-making business, can you not sell some equity/ bring in a new partner? Can you not sell/lease your idle jewellery lying at home to get more finances? Be open-minded and explore all possible solutions at your hand.

5. Stay out of any more trouble/Avoid Risks: This is very obvious, isn't it? If things are not going your way, please do not take more risks. If possible, avoid creating more situations or bringing more complexity to your already stressed finances. Go very conservative on your risk appetite during such periods. If few decisions are unavoidable, try to delay/push the decisions further into the future.

6. Get your family into confidence: Family understanding and support is very crucial during such times. Everyone, your spouse, your parents and children can be your strong support systems. Hence, it is important that you bring everyone together and have an honest talk, share with them the financial troubles you are facing and ask for their support. Trust that everyone will really appreciate your honesty and will support you. They can even become a helping hand, so you all tide over the challenges together. A family that works as a team does much better than you fighting a lonely battle.

7. Start a budget: The importance of budgeting goes beyond any situation. However, during times of stress, it is very critical and practically impossible to avoid.

As soon as you sense trouble, prepare a proper budget for all the expenses you need to do. Leaving aside your 'needs' and mandatory expenses, every rupee should be saved and earmarked towards resolving your troubles. It is also important that you communicate this budget to everyone and seek their commitment to it.

8. Execute and review your plans: Having a plan is one thing but executing it diligently is another challenge altogether. One has to execute the plans ruthlessly, without compromise and within defined time, dates. Treat this as a business challenge or a game that you need to win at any cost. Make no delays, and do what is required to be done. Once you overcome your temporary situation, you will have ample time to think about your priorities and make up for the hard decisions you took.

On preparing your action plan and solutions, remember that If you are serious about resolving your finances, you will not shy away from making hard decisions. Do not think what your family, friends or neighbours will think about your decisions. If your social stature is dictated only by your money power, it is the least you should care about.

9. Consult your financial advisor: The last piece of advice is to engage your financial advisor and ask him/her to help you out. If you do not have a financial advisor, we advise that you look out for a good one. The importance of a financial advisor cannot be underestimated. He will bring in his valuable insights, experience, knowledge and a ready action plan to resolve your issues. Those with long-standing relationships with good financial advisors rarely fall into financial troubles.

SEBI paves way for mutual fund participation in commodity derivatives market

In a step that could significantly deepen the commodity derivatives segment (CDS), market regulator SEBI has issued norms for participation of mutual fund in commodity derivatives like gold, silver, crude, copper, guar, Mentha etc. However, MFs won't be allowed to take positions in sensitive commodities like agri products which are those subject to frequent government intervention and the Essential Commodities Act. Effective May 21, MFs can participate in gold derivatives only through Gold exchange traded funds launched by asset management companies (AMCs) and in other commodity derivatives through hybrid schemes, which currently invest in equity, debt and gold, SEBI said in a circular.

NEWS UPDATE

India manufacturing PMI grows at fastest pace in three months in May

India's manufacturing sector expanded at its quickest pace in three months in May on improved output and new orders, according to a private business survey which also showed a pick up in hiring. The survey found increased optimism about manufacturing activity over the coming year, probably helped as Prime Minister Narendra Modi scored a dramatic election victory on a mandate of business-friendly policies and a tough stand on national security. Almost 70% of responses were collected after exit polls showed Modi's Bharatiya Janata Party would return to power for a second term.

India Inc expects big-bang reforms under new Finance Minister Sitharaman

With India's gross domestic product (GDP) growth falling to a five-year low in 2018-19, the new finance minister, Nirmala Sitharaman, has her work cut out to jump-start the economy and must announce big-bang reforms in the forthcoming Budget in July, according to top executives and market participants. Rashesh Shah, chairman and chief executive officer (CEO), Edelweiss Group said, We look forward to Ms Sitharaman taking forward the government's growth and reform agenda, at a time when there are a few challenges but significantly greater longer-term opportunities. With her previous experience, she will be very well suited and prepared for a role that will probably define the way India evolves into one of the world's biggest economies over the next few decades.

GDP growth slips to five-year low on slowdown in investment, manufacturing

India's economic growth fell to 5.8 per cent in the January-March period of 2018-19, the lowest in 20 quarters, due to a sharp slowdown in investment and manufacturing growth as well as a contraction in agricultural production. This pulled down the gross domestic product (GDP) expansion to 6.8 per cent in FY19, the slowest in the first stint of the Modi government. The economy's revival will be a key challenge for the new finance minister, Nirmala Sitharaman. Economic growth in FY19 was much below the government's own projections of 7.2 per cent in the first advance estimates and 7 per cent in the second one. Economists expect the Reserve Bank of India's (RBI's) Monetary Policy Committee to cut the policy rate in the upcoming meeting to revive investments.

Modi govt meets revised fiscal deficit target of 3.4% for 2018-19

The Centre's full year fiscal deficit for FY19 came in at ₹6.45 trillion, slightly above the revised estimate of ₹6.34 trillion, showed official data released by the Controller General of Accounts. With gross domestic product (GDP) data for FY19 also released, it was learnt that fiscal deficit stood at 3.39 per cent of the GDP, against a revised estimate of 3.4 per cent, mainly on account of an increase in non-tax revenue and lower expenditure. Hence, the fiscal deficit figure is above estimates in absolute terms, it is slightly lower as a percentage of GDP, due to expansion in the latter.
